

Software approval

Concerning a new software or a new version of an existing software which Powerfinn Oy has delivered to the customer Powerfinn Oy expects the customer notifies of possible insufficiencies or errors in 30 days after receiving the software. If this notification has not been occurred in that period Powerfinn Oy expects that the customer has approved the software. It is also expected that when the customer uses the software in commercial deliveries the software has been approved even though the delivery has happened during that 30 day period.

If the order of a new software or a software version concerns also the order of equipments in which the software will be used Powerfinn Oy takes responsibility in software approval sense only of one equipment. If the customer wants to use several equipments the customer is also responsible of possible additional costs.
